

EAC Education Advisory Council

What is EAC

EAC originated as the Education Advisory Council, which was a small group of Onity Integra electronic locking system users who came together in an annual meeting to share feedback, suggestions, and product ideas with Onity management. Today, EAC has evolved into a larger blend of Onity system users who are invited to an Onity User Group Meeting.

Who attends the EAC User Conference?

Clients responsible for purchase decisions and facility maintenance from colleges, universities, school districts, and other government entities. Representatives from Housing, One Card, Facilities, Campus Safety/Security, Information Technology, Administration, Lockshops and other departments attend the conference in order to gain different perspectives and share ideas about using our products.

History and Purpose

In 2002, several customers in the education industry joined Onity leaders and envisioned a community with a proactive, two-way communication link, focused on user interests by giving customers a “voice” in the development of Onity products and services. An annual meeting was established to give clients an opportunity to have one-on-one time with Onity leaders, voice concerns, network in a community of their peers, and play an integral role in Onity’s product and organizational development.

EAC User Conference

The EAC user group meeting brings together a unique and diverse blend of national and international users of Onity electronic locking systems. Attendees are dedicated to the development of Onity’s product line, support for other users, and commitment to the future direction of Onity.

The EAC fosters a relationship between Onity and its customers that helps to continually improve Onity as a company and grow to better-meet the needs of others.
